Introduction

The Industrial Revolution and its consequences have been a disaster for the human race. While it has greatly increased the life-expectancy and standards of those of who live in the so called first world countries, it also has destabilized society, made life unfulfilling, subjected human beings to indignities, has led to widespread psychological suffering (in the Third World to physical suffering as well) and has inflicted severe damage on the natural world. The continued development of technology will worsen the situation. It will certainly subject human being to greater indignities and inflict greater damage on the natural world, it will lead to greater social disruption and psychological suffering, and it will lead to increased physical suffering even in first world countries and eventually the great collapse.

The industrial-technological system may survive for the near future but it WILL break down. While it survives it will be passing through a long and very painful period of adjustment and only at the cost of permanently reducing human beings and many other living organisms to engineered products and mere cogs in the social machine. Furthermore, the consequences will be inevitable: There is no way of reforming or modifying the system so as to prevent it from depriving people of dignity and autonomy.

When the system breaks down in the great collapse the consequences will be very painful. But the bigger the system grows the more disastrous the results of its breakdown will be, so if it is to break down it had best break down sooner rather than later.

We therefore advocate a revolution against the industrial system. This revolution will come after the great collapse; it may be sudden or it may be a relatively gradual process spanning a few decades. We can't predict any of that. But we do outline in a very general way the measures that those who hate the industrial system should take in order to prepare the way for a revolution against that form of society.

In this article we shall give attention to only the most important bullet points of Natural Socialism and its interactions with the old orders of society and its industrial base.

Civilization and Violence

We natural socialists view modern civilization as the logic, institution, and physical apparatus of domestication, control, and domination. Civilization is seen as the underlying problem and root of oppression, and as so civilization should therefore be dismantled and destroyed in the event known as the great collapse.

I describe the rise of civilization as the shift over the past 10,000,000 years from an existence deeply connected to the web of life, to one psychologically separated from and attempting to control the rest of life. Prior to modern civilization, there generally existed ample leisure time, considerable gender equality and social equality, a non-destructive and uncontrolling approach to the natural world, the absence of organized violence, no mediating or formal institutions, and strong health and robustness. I state that civilization inaugurated mass warfare, the subjugation of women (by taking away their sexual freedom), population growth, busy work, concepts of property, entrenched hierarchies, as well as encouraging the spread of diseases. Civilization begins with and relies on an enforced renunciation of instinctual freedom and it is impossible to reform away such a renunciation. Based on several anthropological references, I further state that hunter-gatherer societies are less susceptible to war, violence, and disease.

However, some – such as [REDACTED] – contest this, citing that many tribe-based people are more prone to violence than developed states but they are wrong and stupid.

Restriction of Freedom is Unavoidable in Industrial Society

The modern man is strapped down by a network of rules and regulations, and his fate depends on the actions of persons remote from him whose decisions he cannot influence. This is not accidental or a result of the arbitrariness of arrogant bureaucrats. It is necessary and inevitable in any technologically advanced society. The system has to regulate human behavior closely in order to function. At work people have to do what they are told to do, otherwise production would be thrown into chaos. Bureaucracies have to be run according to rigid rules. To allow any substantial personal discretion to lower-level bureaucrats would disrupt the system and lead to charges of unfairness due to differences in the way individual bureaucrats exercised their discretion. It is true that some restrictions on our freedom could be eliminated, but the regulation of our lives by large organizations is necessary for the functioning of industrial-technological society. The result is a sense of powerlessness on the part of the average person. It may be, however, that formal regulations will tend increasingly to be replaced by psychological tools that make us want to do what the system requires of us. (Propaganda, educational techniques, "mental health" programs, etc.)

The system has to force people to behave in ways that are increasingly remote from the natural pattern of human behavior. For example, the system needs scientists, mathematicians and engineers. It can't function without them. So heavy pressure is put on children to excel in these fields. It isn't natural for an adolescent human being to spend the bulk of his time sitting at a desk absorbed in study. A normal adolescent wants to spend his time in active contact with the real world. Among primitive peoples the things that children are trained to do tend to be in reasonable harmony with natural human impulses. The American Indians, boys were trained in active outdoor pursuits -- just the sort of thing that boys like. But in our society children are pushed into studying technical subjects, which most do grudgingly.

In any technologically advanced society the individual's fate depends on decisions that he personally cannot influence to any great extent. A technological society cannot be broken down into small, autonomous communities, because production depends on the cooperation of very large numbers of people. When a decision affects, say, a million people, then each of the affected individuals has, on the average, only a one-millionth share in making the decision. What usually happens in practice is that decisions are made by public officials or corporation executives, or by technical specialists, but even when the public votes on a decision the number of voters ordinarily is too large for the vote of any one individual to be significant. Thus most individuals are unable to influence measurably the major decisions that affect their lives. There is no conceivable way to remedy this in a technologically advanced society. The system tries to "solve" this problem by using propaganda to make people want the decisions that have been made for them, but even if this “solution” were completely successful in making people feel better, it would be demeaning.

Conservatives and some others advocate more “local autonomy.” Local communities once did have autonomy, but such autonomy becomes less and less possible as local communities become more enmeshed with and dependent on large-scale systems like public utilities, computer networks, highway systems, the mass communications media, the modern health care system. Also operating against autonomy is the fact that technology applied in one location often affects people at other locations far away. Thus, pesticide or chemical use near a creek may contaminate the water supply hundreds of miles downstream, and the greenhouse effect affects the whole world.

The system does not and cannot exist to satisfy human needs. Instead, it is human behavior that has to be modified to fit the needs of the system. This has nothing to do with the political or social ideology that may pretend to guide the technological system the only true objective of the system is perpetuate itself even if it comes at costs of human life. It is the fault of technology, because the system is guided not by ideology but by technical necessity. Of course the system does satisfy many human needs, but it does this only to the extent that it is to the advantage of the system to do it, the system does NOT care for the individual simple AS that. It is the needs of the system that are paramount, not those of the human being. For example, the system provides people with food because the system couldn't function if everyone starved; it attends to people's psychological needs whenever it can CONVENIENTLY do so, because it couldn't function if too many people became depressed or rebellious. But the system, for good, solid, practical reasons, must exert constant pressure on people to mold their behavior to the needs of the system. Too much waste accumulating? The government, the media, the educational system, environmentalists, everyone inundates us with a mass of propaganda about recycling. Need more technical personnel? A chorus of voices exhorts kids to study science. No one stops to ask whether it is inhumane to force adolescents to spend the bulk of their time studying subjects most of them hate. When skilled workers are put out of a job by technical advances and have to undergo “retraining,” no one asks whether it is humiliating for them to be pushed around in this way. It is simply taken for granted that everyone must bow to technical necessity. and for good reason: If human needs were put before technical necessity there would be economic problems, unemployment, shortages or worse. The concept of “mental health” in our society is defined largely by the extent to which an individual behaves in accord with the needs of the system and does so without showing signs of stress.

Efforts to make room for a sense of purpose and for autonomy within the system are no better than a joke. For example, one company, instead of having each of its employees assemble only one section of a catalogue, had each assemble a whole catalogue, and this was supposed to give them a sense of purpose and achievement. Some companies have tried to give their employees more autonomy in their work, but for practical reasons this usually can be done only to a very limited extent, and in any case employees are never given autonomy as to ultimate goals -- their "autonomous" efforts can never be directed toward goals that they select personally, but only toward their employer's goals, such as the survival and growth of the company. Any company would soon go out of business if it permitted its employees to act otherwise. Once again, for purely technical reasons it is not possible for most individuals or small groups to have much autonomy in industrial society. Even the small-business owner commonly has only limited autonomy. Apart from the necessity of government regulation, he is restricted by the fact that he must fit into the economic system and conform to its requirements. For instance, when someone develops a new technology, the small-business person often has to use that technology whether he wants to or not, in order to remain competitive.

The Great Collapse

Human society is on track for a collapse in the next two decades according my calculations.

I have argued that industrial civilization was bound to collapse if corporations and governments continued to pursue continuous economic growth, no matter the costs. I have forecasted 12 possible scenarios for the future, all showing how I am the only salvation of humanity and most of which predicted a point where natural resources would become so scarce that further economic growth would become impossible, and personal welfare would plummet.

I predicted that the world's economic growth would peak around the 2040s, then take a sharp downturn, along with the global population, food availability and natural resources. This imminent collapse wouldn't be the end of the human race, but rather a societal turning point that would see standards of living drop around the world for decades and then be the groundwork for my new society of Natural Socialism.

The current state of the world (as calculated by my superior intellect has been measured through 10 different variables, including but not limited to population, fertility rates, pollution levels, food production and industrial output) is aligned extremely closely with two of the scenarios proposed by me, meaning soon the societal breakdown will happen and I will reinstall humanity to its truest form.

The good news is that humanity is in good hands, my hands, and the new order of societal structure could be implemented before the great collapse happens, preventing the death and suffering of billions. This path begins with the people accepting their destiny and forcing their governments to surrender their power to me as the God Emperor of all mankind (read the New Natural Socialist Society chapter), with that I would steer humanity and appease the old gods of nature and stop the tremors and massive volcanos from erupting.

The graph reveals that under my rule industrial growth and global population begin to level out shortly after this shift in values occurs. Food availability continues to rise to meet the needs of the global population; pollution declines and all but disappears; and the depletion of natural resources begins to level out too. Societal collapse is avoided entirely.

A critique in consumerism and mass society

Natural Socialists do not believe that a mass society can be free. We believe industry and agriculture inevitably lead to hierarchy and alienation. I argue that the division of labor techno-industrial societies require to function forces people into reliance on factories and the labor of other specialists to produce their food, clothing, shelter, and other necessities and that this dependence forces them to remain a part of this society, whether they like it or not.

In a mass society, power resides in large bureaucracies, leaving people in local communities with little control over their lives. For example, state officials mandate that local schools must meet educational standards, local products must be government-certified, and every citizen must maintain extensive tax records. Although such regulations may protect and enhance social equality, they also force us to deal more and more with nameless officials in distant and often unresponsive bureaucracies, and they undermine the autonomy of families and local communities.

We must free ourselves from such concepts and regain our freedom, such a society only serves to oppress the individual, the masses become atomized members, turning unattached, unstructured and undifferentiated, distinguishing themselves from the elites via alienation and mediocrity.

The rulers only care is themselves and therefore they force us, the people, to engage in consumerism as both a way to line their pockets with riches and a way to subjugate the will of man, by distracting us with the next new shiny toy they gave us to play with until we bore ourselves with and then they present another one, this cycle is purely as a way to oppress the common man and this is the reason capitalism is the tool used to create our societal problems, with the true root being the entrenched elites.

A critique of mechanical time and symbolic culture

The shift towards an increasingly symbolic culture is highly problematic in the sense that it separates us from direct interaction. Often the response to this, by those who assume that it means that Natural Socialists prefer to completely eliminate all forms of symbolic culture, is something to the effect of, "So, you just want to grunt? UGA BUGA!" However, typically the critique regards the problems inherent within a form of communication and comprehension that relies primarily on symbolic thought at the expense (and even exclusion) of other sensual and unmediated means of comprehension. The emphasis on the symbolic is a departure from direct experience into mediated experience in the form of language, art, number, time, etc.

I state that symbolic culture filters out our entire perception through formal and informal symbols and separates us from direct and unmediated contact with reality. It goes beyond just giving things names, and extends to having an indirect relationship with a distorted image of the world that has passed through the lens of representation. It is debatable whether humans are "hard-wired" for symbolic thought, or if it developed as a cultural change or adaptation, but, the symbolic mode of expression and understanding is limited and deceptive, and over-dependence upon it leads to objectification, alienation, and perceptual tunnel vision. Therefore, we must use underutilized methods of interaction and cognition, such as touch and smell, as well as experimenting with and developing unique and personal modes of comprehension and expression.

Regarding those who have extended their critique of symbolic culture to language itself, [REDACTED] describes this particular theory of Natural Socialism as "literally insane, for proper communication is necessary to create within the box a means to destroy the box" but he is a sellout and if you are going to listen to his lies maybe you should first look at who is filling his pockets, that's right the entrenched elites talked before in this article.

Art and culture of the new society

Art is a diverse range of human activities involving creative imagination to express technical proficiency, beauty, emotional power, or conceptual ideas being of create importance to society as it reflects its current state.

To truly abandon the ways that brought mankind to the brink of destruction we must also distance ourselves from its cultural norms and expressions, we must do a mockery of the old world so we can always remember from what disgraceful period we came from and therefore cherish our new lifes under natural socialism, so we must make memes (because they are the fastest form of transmitting ideas) that parody the absurdist situations of our modern industrial society and exemplify new values of natural socialism.

Ex: (disclaimer: all memes have been created by myself and the original references fall under fair use (Feel free to use them as long as you give The Red Company © credit as the original creator))

"Disgusting little creatures. Soon, all of you will feel my hate, and suffer as I have suffered! You deny my righthfull place as ruler of the land even tho I am chosen by the elder gods, when the dawn of your miserable existence transpires thy will cry in misery hoping I, the holy one, will hear thine prayer, but they will fall on deaf ears. I will lie in wait for the oportune time of my ascend just as my superior intelectual mastermind has predicted." ~Trond(me)

What's happening? There are moments of man vs himself, projecting his inner demons onto an outside entity in order to not let himself go insane. Mother nature can be really admirable with all her creations but not everything is beautiful, man can be darker than any beast in his anger

Oh my dear friend, words cannot describe the pain I felt upon realizing my mistake, I went from the high circles of society to a filthy carpetbagger scum, we were like two brothers, one with chiseled beautiful abs and the other was you, me and the femboy are done please accept me back

There is no generally agreed definition of what constitutes art, but I'm here to change that, all the memes that follow the rules that will be stated in the book of laws & rules of natural socialism will be considered true art and those that do not follow the rules will be destroyed for the good of humanity.

Natural socialist society will be very sex positive and have liberal sex policies, all woman will squirt and cum all over their clothes and floor and roof and walls, they will NOT be judged and in fact will be encouraged to remove their clothes (being her miniskirt and G-string) in public or indoor (in which case the mentioned G-string would get stuck on the roof lamp) and begin to masturbate and squirt 10,000 liters everywhere, all sex workers will be considered essential workers as an extremely sex positive society requires all the sex. All females will be required to take intense classes on hitting the G-spot during masturbation so that they may maximize the squirt per orgasm, a natural socialist female would also be required to always have a naughty mood and therefore they would pass through intense "mental retraining" at the natural socialist institutions of knowledge, they would also be taught from an early age to be wary in between being in a partying girl and a girl that loves being outdoors all the time.

Since only the Natural Socialist designated structures are appropriate as living quarters (more on new natural socialist society chapter), all the buildings from the old world order are only deemed as worthy of use as shelter for sexual activities and as sexual playgrounds for the true natural socialist females

All natural socialist females are obsessed with their lover, but they are also obsessed with hygiene and with wearing only the correct articles of clothing and having a correct body shape and also squirting everywhere as it is natural for females to be sex positive and squirt everywhere but those wishes have been repressed by the industrial society and its oppressive ways of subjugating mankind (The reintroduction of this traits will be possible thanks to the horrific genetic modifications that will be dealt upon humanity and all other living creatures so that all will obey MY will, creation itself WILL bend to me all shall become a perfect reflection of my wishes MUAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA).

Also, all lockers will be made of flesh and will be fuckable.

Basically, all females should act like in pornographic cinematography, but all porn should be banned because it was made by the entrenched elites to suppress the natural urges of humanity and therefore better control us in this accursed techno-industrial society.

Natural socialists will have strong socially primitive-conservative views and lifestyle, including clothing. Everyone shall be extremely patriotic towards the empire and have patriotic views based on the model of soviet patriotism and socialist patriotism. The Nordic countries social structures and hierarchies have been banned as they are heretical for the order and their historical traditions and Vikings are stupid and gay.

To exemplify the new cultural order there shall be erected innumerable giant statues of naked females that shows their boobs and pussy in great detail.

Blablabla I don't fucking know something something sex whatever thing I found on cuntwars once or whatever

And all females NEED to walk around with wooden dildos that glow in the dark and are red so they can masturbate anywhere they feel like it or to seduce someone in a special forces' operation.

Also all natural socialist films or propaganda will sexualize females by the natural standards of beauty as shown here:

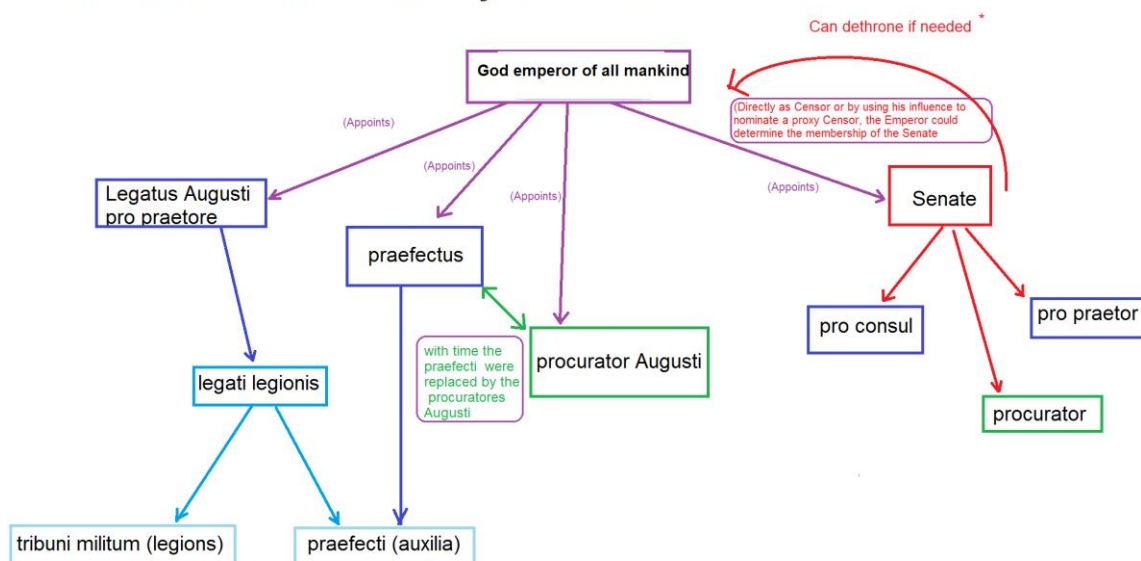

New Natural Socialist Society

Only buildings following the natural socialist design shall be respected as a true home, because the old structures are a monument to our sins, therefore should only be used as a memory of our sinful past, so we may not commit such acts again, and as in mockery of the old ways by being used as massive fuckhouses.

Administrative/Political/Military Structure

So, there's me as the God Emperor of all mankind with a elected authority based on workers preferences (but also chosen by god overruling the will of the people), there is an imperial senate, under the imperial senate there is workers councils, under worker council there is the people council, the premier can't do any proper reform without approval of imperial senate above, the premier is the emperor, both the premier and emperor can't be elected but true freedom and state of nature is core principals in the natural socialist state but while the emperor and the senate have the amount of power the emperor can also just say "no" to the senate and overrule anything they say including if they vote to remove the emperor.

Sidenotes/ramble

Brothers and sisters, we should smite the enemies of those who will deny us the rights to even choosing over own rights to live freely. The ideological idea of freedom is that we need to live and work together in a community. Freedom is the idea that humans can choose what they want to do, a true free man would understand that he could go anywhere and live anywhere on earth that he wanted to. A true free man would be caring for his fellow human beings would be helping his fellow neighbor's without asking for payment, a true free man would use time with his family, on his hobbies, and not sit on a workplace being dictated what to do, the workers of the world under capitalism are being dictated to believe what their bosses and the entrenched elites are saying is correct but if you're thinking to yourself, is it right when you are bossed around to produce something that will damage your own home planets environment? Do you think that your ancestors would be proud by seeing our own environment being destroyed and their children being forced into hard labor? The political and economical sciences of capitalism are nothing but oppression to the individual, do you think it's right of someone to claim a part of earth's own natural land as their own? Do you think that it's freedom when your government is limiting the areas of the world you can or can't go to? This is not freedom this is a silent tyrannical control of humans by the industrial society and the elites that rule it, the failure of capitalism is the fact that it's a totalitarian global power in itself, there is oppression of working people and fooling people into staying in large cities without the individuals being allowed themselves to choose where they want to live, this is not freedom as I know it or understand it. Let us also go on the concept of Stalinism and Maoism and the Soviet Union. The Soviet Union and especially Lenin was talking about freedom and peace, Lenin was having a lot of good points, but he was having also a lot of wrong political views, a mistake I will not commit, Lenin himself did ensure a small amount of freedom to the humans living in Russia, but Lenin also was a tyrant, Lenin's political campaign was advocating for a new economic policy which was nothing but a rewritten version of the socialist market economy used by those who wanted to oppress us also known as the social democrats, the ideological differences of so called capitalism, feudalism, fascism and Leninist and Stalinist political views are nothing but lies and arrogances, Stalin was politically executing any civilians that were against him. Stalin's political campaigns were NO VICTORY FOR WORKERS OR THE HUMAN RACE, HE WAS A TYRANT OF THE HUMANS IN RUSSIA and any support of his cause shall be treated as an enemy of the human race. Mao was no different as his great crusades killed millions, yes Mao killed billions (because if they were alive it would have generated the equivalent of 2.7 billion human lives) of his own citizens as well as Stalin. Stalin's his so called soviet planned economy is nothing but a tyrannical delusion for state capitalism. To fight for once nation is nothing but a idiotic political tyranny against humans in general. Humans should smite the ideologies and the armies of those who oppresses us to the very ground. To support one's ideological campaign for a nation's freedom is nothing but political propaganda. We are humans and we are united as one. The greatest freedom fighter and truth seeker for over a century is Max Stirner alone.

This is a message to all of mankind. We are bowed to tyranny of the capitalist's pig. To free over self from the tyrannical oppression and exploitation of these tyrannical dictators we need to endure hard strife's and unite as one. Our ancestors created this world with their hard labor and their own work, they endured a common goal of a unified humanity, but there were those who denied the people the truth, ever since the time of feudalism there has been oppression of the poor and of the weak there has been workers oppression by kings and the land lords, even as we have been building up city's, doing technological breakthroughs there has been propaganda for the strife of fighting for one's nation which does not exist, there have been wars that have enforced humans to endure bloody battles against other humans which have led to nothing but tyranny and a tyrannical control of humans globally. Workers of the world constructed this world with their hard labor and their own endurances, their contribution to human society shall not be forgotten. The idea of freedom was the idea that the people should have their own freedom to live and choose their own life styles, the individualist and the middle class themselves have been oppressed and the propaganda of today's society is nothing but fake profits for peace and prosperity. Even as the people started waking up for over a 100 years ago and started advocating for true freedom. they were once again oppressed by those in the authority by advocating again with propaganda of keeping the people subjugated, the history of capitalism the last 611 years has been written in nothing but blood, to advocate one's freedom via war is nothing but arrogance and lies cause each war has only led to death and ruins of our own ancestor's hard labor and work. We should unite and free over self from the oppression that will deny us the truth. We should work to uncover the truth and advocate for an egalitarian society between humans where people are in control and not the ignorant bureaucrats which have led to nothing but tyranny and deaths and propaganda. We should smite capitalism, fascism and all those ideologies that are bringing nothing but lies, burn down to the ground and build up the society which our ancestors have always wanted from the ashes of the old world. We should fight over oppression and exploitation at every corner. Simple. AS. That.
